PRESS RELEASE

Galain Solutions, LLC Announces New Emergency Notification Blog for Emergency Management Magazine

Franklin, TN, August 26, 2009: Galain Solutions, LLC, a government markets consulting firm, today announced the official launch of a new blog aimed at agencies and businesses wishing to follow trends in emergency notification technology. The blog appears on Emergency Management magazine's website and can be accessed at www.emergencymgmt.com/emergency-blogs/alerts. Topics covered include technology trends, best practices, case studies, and funding.

Readers will benefit from the experience of the blog's two primary contributing authors, Rick Wimberly and Lorin Bristow, President and Partner respectively in Galain Solutions, LLC. Wimberly and Bristow offer nearly 20 years combined experience in critical communications and ENS.

"The blog will offer practical advice surrounding the creation and support of emergency notification systems" said Rick Wimberly, President of Galain. "We believe the industry is evolving in interesting new ways; we want to address the full spectrum of topics associated with using technology to mobilize first responders and alert the public in times of crisis."

"Galain is honored to be chosen as ENS experts for Emergency Management magazine," said Lorin Bristow, Partner in Galain. "We will strive to offer relevant, unbiased information about these critical, though sometimes confusing, tools for public safety."

Posts to date include titles such as: “New Study Gives Telephone Notification High Marks,” “Nationwide Cell Alerting Moves Forward,” “Data and Policies Key to Successful Notification,” and “Statewide Notification System to be Launched.”
